DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

I. Claims 1-13, drawn to a method of optically detecting the three-dimensional shape of an interior space defined by an inner wall, comprising the steps of: providing said interior space with an elastic envelope in snug contact with the inner wall and marked with marks facing the inside of the space and adapted to be evaluated photogrammetrically; producing a number of overlapping image recordings of said interior space marked in this way with the aid of one or more imaging devices; and using photogrammetrical methods for determining from said recordings the three-dimensional shape of that part of said interior space that was detected by said overlapping recordings, classified in class 356, subclass 600.

II. Claim 15-16, drawn to apparatus for optically detecting the three-dimensional shape of an interior space, comprising: a thin, elastic envelope provided with marks adapted to be photogrammetrically evaluated, said envelope being adapted to be placed into an interior space to be scanned three-dimensionally, so that said envelope snugly lines the wall defining said interior space, one or more imaging devices that can be guided through the interior space in such a way that they record overlapping image recordings of said marked thin envelope, and a computer, to which image sequences of the image recordings are transmitted by said imaging devices and which forms lists of homologous marks from the images of the image sequences using an image processing program, and which calculates from the list of homologous marks the 3D-coordinates of the interior space at the positions of these marks using a photogrammetrical program, classified in class 356, subclass 607.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions [I] and [II] are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product. See MPEP § 806.05(h). In the instant case, the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product such as by a computer, to which image sequences of the image recordings are transmitted by said imaging devices and which forms lists of homologous marks from the images of the image sequences using an image processing program, and which calculates from the list of homologous marks the 3D-coordinates of the interior space at the positions of these marks using a photogrammetrical program. Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions require a different field of search (see MPEP § 808.02), restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious burden on the examiner if restriction is not required because the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art due to their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
